Community Engagement in State Plan Development (p. 64916)

- Requires states to conduct a public hearing, provide information about engagement they have done, and the means by which they intend to involve vulnerable communities as they develop their final plan.
- If extending deadline, states must demonstrate how they are meaningfully engaging vulnerable communities, including how they identified these communities.
- “States need to engage meaningfully with communities and other stakeholders during the initial and final plan submittal process.” Meaningful engagement includes:
  - Outreach to vulnerable communities,
  - Sharing information and soliciting input on state plan development,
  - Selecting methods for engagement at critical junctures in plan formulation and implementation,
  - Providing opportunities for comment and responding to comments received.
- States are “expected” to conduct outreach meetings providing information on their proposed plans in the appropriate languages and translators.
- “Recommends” that states consult May 2015 Guidance on Considering Environmental Justice during the Development of Regulatory Actions.
